MAKE CHANGE

We are social workers.

Every day, social workers support people in navigating complex systems. We are uniquely positioned to identify and fill systemic gaps, provide key services and programs, and connect communities to what they need, all while applying our skills to build a more just world. This National Social Work Month, let's recognize and celebrate the invaluable contributions of social workers in supporting health, mental health and well-being across complex systems and settings. Social work is essential.
